BAMN advocates a national policy of affirmative action and promotes the protection and expansion of civil rights for all under represented classes. BAMN has historically organized on K-12 schools, and college campus. BAMN focuses its activities around the law enforcement system, political power and government. Open source research shows BAMN leadership has advocated violent activity against perceived racist institutions during major demonstrations. Citing, "history has shown some violence is needed to prompt meaningful political responses, such as those during urban riots in the late 1960's over civil rights and economic injustice."
